TAX REFORM COMMITTEE CONTINUES WORK; LACK OF INFRASTRUCTURE IMPEDING DEVELOPMENT SECRETARY NOTES

The legislative committee studying tax reform in West Virginia held another meeting Monday and heard from WV Commerce Director Keith Burdette on how the state ranks in attracting business. Lack of developable land, a low workforce participation rate and inadequate infrastructure are among the drawbacks companies cite for West Virginia. Speaking before the Legislature’s Select Committee on Tax Reform, Burdette said less than 3 percent of land in the state is considered level. “We don’t lose prospects over taxes. We lose them over site. Our biggest challenge is the availability of sites that meet the needs and specifications of our prospects,” he said. On pure taxes, the secretary said West Virginia ranks 21st in the country, better than every single state around West Virginia. The Legislature has reduced the Corporate Net Income Tax from 9 percent to 6.5 percent and eliminated the business franchise tax. As Burdette testified, West Virginia needs to improve a lot of things to make itself more attractive to businesses. “We can’t sell our college-going rate … We can’t sell our infrastructure,” the secretary said on MetroNews Talkline. “The (workforce) participation rate is … lowest in the country and our education levels are the lowest in the country.”

The tax reform committee is expected to place highway funding on the September meeting agenda. The committee expects to have a final report ready for the full legislature later this year.

CAWV MEETS WITH SENATOR CAPITO STAFF

The CAWV met this week with Adam Tomlinson, Legislative Director, and Jan Brunner, Senior Energy Policy Advisor, for Sen. Shelley Moore Capito in the CAWV office to discuss issues before Congress that impact the construction industry. A major topic of discussion was of the Senate’s passage of The DRIVE Act, a six-year transportation funding bill. The Senate passed a six-year bill that is funded for three years. The House wanted to pass a five month extension of the current bill. The compromise was a three month extension of MAP-21. The Senator’s staff noted the Senate agreed to a three month extension of the highway bill to keep pressure on the House to pass a long-term highway funding bill and to avoid having highways conflict with more controversial issues that arise at the end of the year. Following passage of the Senate bill, Sen. Capito issued the following statement:

“After weeks of debate, I am proud that the Senate has come to a consensus on a bipartisan, six-year transportation funding bill that will deliver the certainty and flexibility states need to advance critical infrastructure projects like Corridor H and the King Coal Highway. I have been a strong voice for West Virginia’s roads, bridges and highways throughout this debate, and I am encouraged that an overwhelming Senate majority recognizes the need for long-term federal investment in our transportation infrastructure. Now that the Senate has come together to pass a multi-year highway bill, it is time for the House to do the same.”
Both Tomlinson and Brunner noted the original Senate bill had billions more in additional annual funding but Senators had concerns with some of the sources of revenue. In order to get the votes necessary for passage, a number of sources were removed from the bill, thus reducing the annual revenue generated.

Other CAWV issues discussed with the Senator’s leadership team include the “Waters of the U.S.” rule proposed by the U.S. EPA, funding for the Clean Water and Safe Drinking Water State Revolving Loan Fund programs and funding for the Abandoned Mine Lands program. The CAWV appreciates the efforts of Sen. Capito and her staff to address the issues of concern to contractors and West Virginia’s construction industry.

MEMBERS INVITED TO CAWV REGIONAL MEETING IN HUNTINGTON OCTOBER 1

The CAWV is hosting a regional meeting of members on Thursday, October 1 in Huntington. It will be held at the new Applied Engineering Building at Marshall. The meeting will begin at 3:00 p.m. with a meeting of the CAWV Board of Directors. From 5:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m., there will be an open reception for all members in the local area. Tours of the new $56 million complex will be given by current Marshall University Engineering students and CAWV members BBL Carlton and Bastian & Harris, the project’s general contractor and architect. “I would like to invite all members to attend the Board meeting and reception,” said CAWV President Dan Cooperrider. “This is a great opportunity to members to meet and greet one another, plus it’s a chance to see Marshall’s new state-of-the-art engineering facility.” Registration information will be sent next week.

On Saturday, October 3, come and join fellow CAWV members and Marshall fans for the 10th Annual CAWV Marshall Tailgate. The CAWV will be hosting this event on the West Lot before Marshall takes on Old Dominion on October 3. The tailgate will begin at 1:30 p.m. and will be open until kickoff at 3:30 p.m. All members, company staff and employees are welcome. Members who are interested in sponsoring this event or who need additional information should contact Wendy Long at (304) 342-1166 or email long@cawv.org. Game tickets are available by calling the Marshall Ticket office at 1-800-THE-HERD or online at www.herdzone.com. If your company would like to sponsor this event, please contact Wendy Long at (304) 342-1166.

PRESIDENT COOPERRIDER TO MEET WITH COMMITTEE CHAIRPERSONS

The CAWV Committee Chairpersons will meet on Tuesday, September 1 at 10:00 a.m. in the CAWV conference room to set committee goals and meeting dates for the 2015-2016 committees. The CAWV’s committees and task forces are the driving forces in addressing many of the issues affecting CAWV members and the contracting industry. President Dan Cooperrider is currently seeking volunteers to participate. The sign-up form is attached to this week’s Newsletter. Members are urged to print the form and pass out copies to their employees who would like to participate. Committee functions are included on the form to assist members in deciding which committee to serve on. If you have questions about the committees or task forces, please call Pat McDonald for details at (304) 342-1166 or pmcdonald@cawv.org.

CAWV President Dan Cooperrider appointed the following committee chairpersons for 2015-2016:

Budget and Finance Committee ........................................ C.R. Neighborgall, Neighborgall Construction Co.
Education Committee .................................................. Blake Stevens, G & G Builders, Inc.
Joint Architects Committee ........................................... Derick Foster, Paramount Builders, LLC
Joint Concrete Committee ............................................ Phil Browne, Rumble Ready Mix, Inc.
Joint Cooperative Committee ..................................... Nate Orders, Orders Construction Company, Inc.
Joint Cooperative Utility Sub Committee ....................... Tim Spradling, Benchmark Construction Co., Inc.
Joint Cooperative Construction Sub Committee ............. John Boyle, Mountaineer Contractors, Inc.
The CAWV will soon be mailing registration packets for the CAWV 2016 Midyear Meeting. The meeting will be held February 12-17, 2016 at Disney's flagship resort, the Grand Floridian Resort & Spa, which hosted the 2009 Midyear Meeting. Rooms will fill up quickly so special reminder emails will be sent. Family events and business functions find a great mix at Disney's flagship resort, which is just a monorail ride away to the Magic Kingdom Park. Watch future Newsletters for more information on the business sessions.

“The Program Committee will be meeting soon to finalize the agenda,” said Chairman Doug Meeks. “There were nearly 500 members in attendance at our 2009 meeting,” Chairman Meeks said. “I hope we will have more this time. We encourage members to start planning early so we can accommodate everyone who wants to go.”

For questions, please contact Wendy Long at (304) 342-1166 or long@cawv.org. Be sure and check out the Grand Floridian web site by clicking here for more information on this year's destination.

CAWV MEMBERS LEARN HOW TO SAVE MONEY USING THE NPP AFFINITY PROGRAMS

Several CAWV member companies logged in on Thursday to participate in a presentation by Joel Wood, Commercial Construction Manager for National Purchasing Partners. Members learned the benefits of participation in the NPP Discount Program, which is available with CAWV membership. Participants learned how to sign up for money saving programs from companies such as Verizon Wireless, Fastenal, Staples, Expedia and several others. Many CAWV members are currently saving thousands of dollars annually with the CAWV / NPP Discount Program. For more information on the money saving programs available through NPP and information on how to take advantage of each one, see the flyer attached to this week's Newsletter or contact Pat McDonald at (304) 342-1166 or pmcdonald@cawv.org with questions. The presentation was part of the CAWV Education Series sponsored by BrickStreet Insurance and the CAWV Education Committee.

BETTER BUSINESS PERFORMANCE THROUGH SAFETY MANAGEMENT SYMPOSIUM

The Visiting Committee for the School of Safety Management in Industrial Management and Systems Engineering, WVU alumni and friends are hosting an Inaugural Safety Management Symposium on Thursday, October 8, 2015 from 9:00 am - 4:00 pm with a reception following at the Alumni Center in Morgantown, WV. See this week’s Safety Bulletin for more information.

#FTDR GAINING TRACTION

Anyone listening these days to Hoppy Kercheval on MetroNews Talkline knows what “Hashtag FTDR” means. It’s “Fix the Damn Roads!” Kercheval takes every opportunity on his morning show to talk about the condition of West Virginia’s highways and the need to provide additional revenue to fix the roads. Joe Deneault, a West Virginians for Better Transportation Board member and a member of the Governor’s Blue Ribbon Commission on Highways, was on Talkline Tuesday talking about the BRC and the status of obtaining funding. Kercheval also makes it a point to #FTDR every legislator or public official appearing on his show. The Governor, speaking over the weekend at the West Virginia Press Association’s annual meeting in Charleston, mentioned the #FTDR campaign, noting it is gaining traction statewide. For more details, see Kercheval’s commentary below.

West Virginians have been complaining even more loudly than usual this year about the roads, and for good reason. They’re in terrible shape.

Those complaints are not falling on deaf ears. Governor Tomblin, in a speech to the West Virginia Press Association last Friday, cited the social media campaign #FTDR. “It’s ‘Fix the Damn Roads’ if you don’t know,” Tomblin explained.

Tomblin put another $82 million toward road work, meaning the DOH will spend more than $300 million on paving and repairs this year, an all-time high. More than half that money ($162 million) is going toward state-funded projects like pothole patching and repaving, while $59 million is paying for Interstate repairs.

“This was an aggressive effort, but we all know that there’s still much work to be done,” Tomblin said. “But let me be clear. Regardless of any additional funding or appropriations that we may make, all states, including ours, count on federal funds to assist with both new construction and road maintenance.”

He’s right. Congress has been unwilling to pass the traditional six-year funding plan for highways and instead has passed 34 short extensions since 2009. The temporary funding has made it nearly impossible for states to plan for and conduct major highway projects.

Washington lawmakers insist they will finally do that next month. We’ll see.

Meanwhile, paying for all the work necessary to bring West Virginia roads and bridges up to reasonable and safe standards will take a combination of federal and state dollars. An independent audit of the state highway department is expected to be completed later this year. That should reveal some savings and efficiencies.

But, as we have said before, fixing West Virginia’s roads takes real money. The Governor’s Blue Ribbon Commission on Highways reported earlier this year that it would take another $1.13 billion annually to do all the work necessary.

That’s way out of our price range.
The Commission’s revenue committee did, however, whittle that down to an additional $420 million annually, with the money coming from a combination of savings, efficiencies, increases in the vehicle sales tax and DMV fees, an alternative fuel vehicle registration fee, and dedication of sales tax on vehicle parts (batteries, brakes, etc.) to the State Road Fund.

The State has an unusually high burden with the roads. West Virginia maintains the sixth largest highway system because it’s responsible for all primary and secondary roads; we no longer have a county road system like most states.

Additionally, the mountainous terrain makes building and maintaining roads even more expensive. The weather hasn’t helped. The Tomblin administration reports five storms this year have caused $100 million dollars in damages to West Virginia roads.

The #FTDR campaign has helped raise awareness about the roads, and public policy makers are more likely to respond when they hear a unified voice from constituents. Keep spreading the word.

Fix the Damn Roads.

STATE SHIFTS FUNDS TO REPAVING PROJECTS

The state announced plans Friday to re-prioritize highway funding which will add an additional $75 million for paving and road repair projects. This year, the WVDOH will spend an all-time high of over $300 million on projects, with more than half that money going toward state-funded projects like pothole patching and repaving, while $59 million is paying for Interstate repairs.

“Seventy percent of our funding is now going to go toward the preservation of the existing highway system and 30 percent to new four-lane construction,” state Transportation Secretary Paul Mattox said. “It’s going to take a few years to get our roads back into shape but that’s what we’re focused on.”

The increased funding will result in an additional 1,775 miles being repaved in the current budget, Mattox said. Additional revenue for highways in recent months has come from a number of sources including collecting more than expected from the taxes that make up the state Road Fund ($47 million); the refinancing of the state road bond debt ($24 million); and revenue from the consumer sales tax on construction materials $11 million).
