NAVIGATING AND ANALYZING FALL HAZARDS

While much advancement has been made in fall protection equipment and technology, falls remain a serious concern in today's work force. Falls are second only to motor vehicle accidents in terms of annual injuries and cost. Whether they occur at the same level (trip and falls, stump and falls, step and falls or slip and falls) or from a higher level, falls typically are very unforgiving. Conducting a thorough job analysis is vital to safe operations when navigating fall hazards and attempting to correctly and safely use fall protection equipment.

FALL HAZARD CAUSES AND ANALYSIS - One of the most important components of conducting a job hazard analysis is observing the operation as it is underway. This helps identify potential hazards and also allows supervisors to evaluate workers' frames of mind. Fall hazards can stem from various situations, including: a foreign object in the walkway, a design flaw in the walking surface, slippery surfaces, an unprotected edge, misuse of fall protection equipment, physical impairments/ailments and falling objects. These and other applicable causes should be taken into account and analyzed. Additionally, these hazards should be sought out during the observation component of the job analysis. Proposed fall protection equipment should be analyzed in order to determine its feasibility and effectiveness.

The accident history of the company and others within the industry also should be analyzed and drawn upon as part of the fall hazard analysis. In addition, the analysis should consider the implementation of existing protocols that can eliminate both foreseen and unforeseen fall hazards. If the analysis identifies a deficiency in an existing fall protection protocol/equipment, the plan should be amended to address all of the fall hazards appropriately.

ADDRESSING UNCONTROLLED FALL HAZARDS - Uncontrolled fall hazards are those that are not, or cannot, be controlled. Most hazards go uncontrolled because they are not identified during the hazard analysis portion of the work plan. Identifying uncontrolled hazards may seem difficult; however, a safety manager who has done his or her due diligence in observing the work in progress and analyzing past accident statistics and other information, as well as analyzing other leading and trailing indicators, stands a good chance of identifying and addressing otherwise uncontrolled or unidentified hazards. Uncontrolled hazards should be eliminated to the maximum extent possible.

ANALYZING IMPACT AND ACCELERATION FACTORS - Impact and acceleration are both very important factors in the identification and analysis of appropriate fall protection plans and equipment. Impact considers the force that will be applied on an employee during the fall arrest process, while the amount of acceleration determines the amount of impact/force that will be placed on the employee. Acceleration and impact are major factors in the speed and force of falling objects that may strike employees working at lower levels. When analyzing impact and acceleration concerns, be sure to consider, identify and mitigate potential causes. The use and effectiveness of personal protective equipment (e.g. hard hats), toe-boards and overhead protection (e.g. canopies) of workers at lower levels also should play a role in impact and acceleration analysis.

TAKE ACTION: URGE YOUR CONGRESSMAN TO SUPPORT WRRDA

The House of Representatives is slated to vote on the Water Resources Reform and Development Act (WRRDA), H.R. 3080, next week. Please take action and urge your U.S. Representative to vote “yes” on H.R. 3080.

Prior to the government shutdown, the WRRDA bill passed the House Transportation and Infrastructure Committee on a unanimous, bipartisan voice vote. The WRRDA bill authorizes approximately $10 billion for new construction projects—navigation, flood control, locks, dams, and environment restoration--through the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers' (USACE) Civil Works program. To view the potential new projects, see pages 155 through 160 of the bill. Aside from authorizing new projects, the bill includes a host of other AGC contractor priorities, including project delivery and environmental streamlining, improving the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund and Inland Waterways Trust Fund, a public-private partnership pilot program that leverages, but does not replace, government funding for water resources projects. You can also find a detailed, side-by-side analysis of the House and Senate bills by clicking here.

As with Senate passage of its WRRDA bill S. 601 in May, AGC has actively pressed for its WRRDA priorities in the House. AGC has met with over 60 House offices, coordinated the signatures of 56 AGC chapters on a business community WRRDA support letter in anticipation of House action, sent letters of support through two AGC-co-chaired multi-industry coalitions—the Transportation Construction Coalition and the Water Resources Coalition—as well as AGC's own letter of support. AGC continues to advocate and coordinate concerted support for passage of a pro-reform and pro-water resources infrastructure investment WRRDA bill.

If the House passes the bill, a conference committee comprised of members from both chambers will commence to reconcile the differences between the House and Senate WRRDA bills before final passage. AGC will continue to press for enactment of a WRRDA bill that includes the construction industry's priorities. Again, please take action and urge your U.S. Representative to support H.R. 3080.
